

Petrograd, Berlin and Fiume Feature the Pictorial Review of the Day's News Happenings

A DEMONSTRATION of the Red Guards in front of the Bolshevik headquarters in Petrograd.

THE FIRST AMERICAN TROOPS entering Fiume. A platoon from Company G, Second Battalion of the 332d Infantry, arriving in the Adriatic city for police duty.

PHOTO BY I.P.S.

SPARTACANS CAUTIOUSLY advancing along a Berlin street looking for government supporters during the recent street fighting between Liebknecht followers and the government troops.

INTERNATIONAL POLICE PATROL in Fiume, which is now occupied and policed by the Allies. At the right is a Frenchman, next an Italian, a British Tommy and an American doughboy; they are doing police duty in the city whose fate is before the Paris Peace Conference.

EX-GOVERNOR EDWIN S. STUART, a Broad street "snapshot" in front of the Union League.

MARJORIE STINSON is the only woman to whom a pilot's license has been granted by the Joint Army and Navy Board of Aeronautics. Miss Stinson has been flying for five years.

MISS MARGARET HARDING, daughter of W. P. G. Harding, of the Federal Reserve Board, was one of three girls chosen as the most beautiful women at the annual Southern Relief Ball in Washington.

ON EPHRAIM LEDERER, Collector of Internal Revenue, who occupies a big office in the Postoffice Building, will devolve the task of collecting Philadelphia's Federal tax bill. It is estimated that the Philadelphia district's Federal tax bill, under the new revenue act, will amount to approximately $200,000,000.